Surviving and Thriving in the Age of Disruption: Apply Google's Best Team Strategies to Being an Effective Leader

Disruption is happening to many industries. Whether your company is leading disruption, or responding to your competitors' disruptive practices, as a leader, you not only have to embrace change yourself, you have to create an environment where your team members seek and welcome productive change. To be successful leading or responding to disruption depends on deep trust with your team. Google recently released its study of what made its most productive teams. The results can be applied to any organization, especially those seeking or reacting to disruption.
