THRIVE! Women in Leadership: Amplify Your Potential, Power, and Persuasion

Whether you're leading a team, a large organization, your family, or yourself, you've likely at times felt overwhelmed, over-committed, and as though you were under-utilizing your greatest strengths and assets. Qualities such as good listening skills, empathy, and a collaborative approach are important for individual and organizational growth. These are qualities that women possess but often down play in order to be perceived as credible in today's competitive work environment. Rather than suppressing these "feminine"/success traits, women leaders should be encouraged to lean into and leverage them as a means for creating a more engaged, productive, and profitable organization

Jennifer Ledet, CSP, SPHR

Jennifer Ledet, CSP, SPHR, helps leaders cut through the BS, also known as silos, politics, and competition between team members, so they can achieve greater results in less time. Her leadership coaching and development programs focus on mastering communication, inspiring real teamwork, and amping individual influence to impact the bottom line. As a "Recovering HR Director," holding five professional certifications, Jennifer is known for her passion for people and her down-to-earth Cajun sense of humor.
